SHADOW ROCK

All press clippings for Shadow Rock

This document contains the most recent independent tests and reviews for the Shadow Rock and has been generated automatically by a server. Each review has a summary and if the full review is available online a link is provided so you can read the full review. This document has been generated on Oct 5, 2012

Shadow Rock is a recommendation for Mini-PCs

Within a series of articles, the German PC Games Hardware explains in issue 09/12 how to build a mini PC. They talk about the topic of cooling excessively and recommend the be quiet! Shadow Rock Topflow SR1 very much. It gets a 4,5 out of 5 star rating.

Link: http://goo.gl/GySpC

Gamezoom reviews Shadow Rock Topflow SR1

German online magazine Gamezoom is very positive about the Shadow Rock Topflow SR1. The "excellent topblower" convinces especially by its extremely low noise. But the editor also likes the performance, the high quality and the great compatibility with all current sockets. Concluding he gives the Topflow SR1 nine out of ten possible points.

Link: http://goo.gl/sdkYG

Shadow Rock Topflow SR1 at Kit Guru

Kit Guru reviewed the Shadow Rock Topflow SR1 and it is a winner in their opinion. They like the overall performance, the "inaudible" fan, the excellent compatibility through the low profile design and the great price-performance-ratio. In the end they give the Shadow Rock Topflow their "Must have" award.

Link: http://goo.gl/fbSJw

"Shadow Rock TopFlow leaves other coolers way behind"

After positive feedback towards be quiet!'s tower coolers, renowned German online site Technic3D decided to take a look at the Shadow Rock TopFlow, too. In the end there is a clear conclusion and a well earned silver award.

Link: http://goo.gl/LkxZO

Shadow Rock Topflow versus Noctua NH-L12 at Ginjfo

French site Ginjfo reviewed the Shadow Rock Top Flow and compared it to the Noctua NH-L12. They found the topflow cooler from be quiet! offers a great performing solution with less than a degree in temperature difference to the Dark Rock Advanced C1 and the NH-U12P. In addition the Shadow Rock Top Flow is extremely silent, even at full 12 V.

Link: http://goo.gl/lupFF

Ten coolers in PCGH roundup

German print magazine PC Games Hardware did a big roundup with 10 recent air coolers in their 05/12 issue. Among them were three be quiet! coolers: the Dark Rock Pro 2, Dark Rock 2 and the Shadow Rock Topflow SR1. All of them managed to compete well and received nice compliments.

Link: http://goo.gl/GySpC

Shadow Rock Top Flow surprisingly good, according to Hardware Magazine!

Hardware Magazine reviewed the Shadow Rock Top Flow from be quiet!. The magazine praises the quality,as well as the great design, amazingly low noise level and a top quality fan. A good surprise in terms of performance, silence and overall quality!

Link: http://goo.gl/JXhpT

Shadow Rock Topflow put in first place

German online site Hartware.net compared four topflow coolers. The editors were very excited about the Shadow Rock Topflow, especially because of the good performance, very low noise level and great RAM compatibility. Also convincing through its high build quality the cooler finally scored first place and received an editor's choice award.

Link: http://goo.gl/k168n

Silent enough for video editing

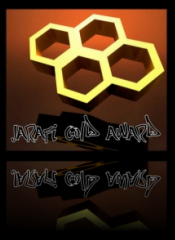
Dutch online magazine Hardware.info recommended the Shadow Rock Pro SR1 as the cooler for their "HD video editing" configuration in April, too. They still give the following advice: for a system working to full capacity the use of the standard cooler would not be advisable, therefore they recommend the be quiet! cooler.

Link: http://goo.gl/Xcl0X

Clear recommendation for Topflow SR1

CGH reader Jarafi is known for his extensive testing and recently reviewed the be quiet! Shadow Rock Topflow SR1, too. Being absolutely delighted he praised the finish quality, the cooling performance and the excellent price-performance ratio.

Link: http://goo.gl/z0J4x



Shadow Rock Topflow - a very good cooler

A user of Polish blog Test IT reviewed the Shadow Rock Topflow and really appreciated it. The design, a low noise level and good compatibility convinced the user. In the end the Topflow got awarded as a good product with 4 out of 5 points.

Link: http://goo.gl/JBKkZ

"Best Buy" award for Shadow Rock TopFlow

PcFoster's editors appreciated the Shadow Rock TopFlow. The cooler did well in comparison with a Noctua cooler and was the one with the best performance and the lowest noise level. It received the "Best Buy" award.

Link: http://goo.gl/wf5LI

Shadow Rock Pro at Kit Guru

The editors at Kit Guru were impressed by the Shadow Rock Pro SR1. They not only liked the design but also the build quality and of course the performance - the Shadow Rock Pro handled their overclocked system very well. In combination with the comparatively low price this led to the famous "Worth buying" award.

Link: http://goo.gl/kS4J8

Shadow Rock SR1 Pro for video editing

Dutch online magazine Hardware.info recommended the Shadow Rock Pro SR1 as the cooler for their "HD video editing" configuration in March, too. They still give the following advice: for a system working to full capacity the use of the standard cooler would not be advisable, therefore they recommend the be quiet! cooler.

Link: http://goo.gl/hZc1t

Shadow Rock Topflow, what a product!

The French site Cowcotland checked out the latest be quiet! offspring, the Shadow Rock Topflow. Impressed by its finishing quality, its low noise level and its cooling performance, the online magazine recommends the product strongly and rewarded it with a silver award.

Link: http://goo.gl/N1M9I

Hardware.info choses Shadow Rock Pro SR1 again

Dutch online magazine Hardware.info recommended the Shadow Rock Pro SR1 as the cooler for their "HD video editing" configuration in February, too. Even february they give the following advice: for a system working to full capacity the use of the standard cooler would not be advisable, therefore they recommend the be quiet! cooler.

Link: http://goo.gl/Cr65s

Shadow Rock SR1 pro for video-editing configuration

Dutch online magazine Hardware.info recommended the Shadow Rock Pro SR1 as the cooler for their "HD video editing" configuration. For a system working to full capacity the use of the standard cooler would not be advisable, therefore they recommend the be quiet! cooler.

Link: http://goo.gl/OYInM

Shadow Rock SR1 Pro in roundup

In issue 12/2011 German PC Games Hardware decided to compare ten CPU coolers in the middle price segment agains another. Among them is a Shadow Rock SR1 Pro. In the end it can score an overall rating of 2,46 and earns some nice words regarding its noise level.

Link: http://goo.gl/GySpC

Newest cooler offspring found to be good be quiet! is enlarging its own cooler family with the new Shadow Rock Pro, which will offer known be quiet! quality for a low price. Hardware.info from the Netherlands were the first to get a hand on this new cooler and they were really satisfied with its performance in comparison to its price. So it received a silver award.

Link: http://goo.gl/wyaBp

